critical race feminism and education provides a transformative next step in the evolution of critical race and black feminist scholarship focusing on praxis the relationship between the construction of race class and gender categories and social justice outcomes is analyzed an applied transdisciplinary model integrating law sociology history and social movement theory demonstrates how marginalized groups are oppressed by ideologies of power and privilege in the legal system the education system and the media pratt clarke documents the effects of racism patriarchy classism and nationalism on black females and males in the single sex school debate

what is a canadian critical race feminism as the contributors to this book note the interventions of canadian critical race feminists work to explicitly engage the canadian state as a white settler society the collection examines indigenous peoples within the canadian settler state and indigenous women within feminism the challenges posed by the settler state for women of colour and indigenous women and the possibilities and limits of an anti colonial praxis critical race feminism like critical race theory more broadly interrogates questions about race and gender through an emancipatory lens posing fundamental questions about the persistence if not magnification of race and the colour line in the twenty first century the writers of these articles whether exploring campus politics around issues of equity the media s circulation of ideas about a tolerant multicultural and feminist canada security practices that confine people of colour to spaces of exception indigenous women s navigation of both nationalism and feminism western feminist responses to the war on terror or the new forms of whiteness that persist in ideas about a post racial world or in transnational movements for social justice insist that we must study racialized power in all its gender and class dimensions the contributors are all members of researchers and academics of colour for equity the past two decades have seen the incursion of feminist thought into many academic areas within the academy feminist approaches have gained some legitimacy and yet simultaneous with these disciplinary advances there have been charges of racism directed at feminist scholarship and practice these charges have resulted in feminist work continuously reshaping itself this volume represents the strength as well as diversity of writings which discuss race and feminism showing how these two areas usually considered to be distinct and therefore discrete from each other have developed feminism and race includes articles spanning a number of disciplinary areas such as history literary analysis sociology and psychology and provides a history of how second wave feminisms have negotiated race as well as suggesting what future directions these debates may take this book raises awareness about gender perspective in political and legal theories and historical analysis the impacts of feminist political and legal theories as well as critical legal studies have been embedded in all the papers in different ways and degrees differences among feminist political and legal ideas are visible in the different approaches the ongoing issue of defining gender for example is a recurring theme in the texts some papers question the binary basis of the gender issue and the notion of gender as such while others start from the binary dichotomy and attempt to expand the consideration towards a multi dimensional understanding of gender identities the main focus is on a feminist reconsideration of all relevant fields of legal knowledge the primary aim is to demystify the seemingly neutral character of legal norms and legal knowledge and highlight the power relations at different layers beginning with male and female legal subjects of western heredity in terms of culture ethnicity and race then moving on to different needs and power relations among female persons of different races and classes and finally addressing differentiating gender relations and identities beyond the framework of the women men binary codification i e also taking into consideration the multiple options of intersex transgender queering etc taking seriously the issue of the maleness of political and legal theories is indeed a challenging and relevant endeavor for legal scholars the male bias is present not only throughout history but also in the present given that our universal categories of political and legal thought are still overburdened by unequal power relations it is also important to open our minds and knowledge production for a gender sensitive and gender competent intersectional approach which would also include various queer race and class based considerations these tasks should be of interest not only to critical legal scholars but also all those belonging to mainstream legal and political thought in a much publicized and much maligned 2003 new york times article the opt out revolution the journalist lisa belkin made the controversial argument that highly educated women who enter the workplace tend to leave upon marrying and having children women who opt out is a collection of original essays by the leading scholars in the field of work and family research which takes a multi disciplinary approach in questioning the basic thesis of the opt out revolution the contributors illustrate that the desire to balance both work and family demands continues to be a point of unresolved concern for families and employers alike and women s equity within the workforce still falls behind ultimately they persuasively make the case that most women who leave the workplace are being pushed out by a work environment that is hostile to women hostile to children and hostile to the demands of family caregiving and that small changes in outdated workplace policies regarding scheduling flexibility telecommuting and mandatory overtime can lead to important benefits for workers and employers alike contributors kerstin aumann jamie dolkas ellen galinsky lisa ackerly hernandez susan j lambert joya misra maureen perry jenkins peggie r smith pamela stone and joan c williams
